

Beyond Elsewhere

Beyond Elsewhere is a hauntingly beautiful long prose poem, a dance that at once touches on the universal and uniquely personal. With his debut collection, Gabriel Arnou-Laujeac establishes himself as one of French poetry's most innovative new voices. His writing is lyrical, masterful, exquisite, an opening into the elusive, affirming the absolute necessity of listening to the world. Beyond Elsewhere is a symphonic poem with boundless language, where past and present meet. Winner of a Hemingway Grant: Beyond Elsewhere was awarded a Hemingway Grant by the French Ministry of Culture, The Institut Français, and the Cultural Services of the French Embassy. A wonderfully lyric, mesmerizing poetic meditation on desire, love, the soul, and spirituality. Arnou-Laujeac's poems are psychotropic -- a beautiful new voice in poetry.--Victoria Chang A dazzling hymn to the currents of desire that shape each individual life... Do not miss the chance to take this exhilarating journey.--Christopher Merrill This incandescent metonym of light is, writ small, a marriage of eastern and western wisdoms--a bildungsroman describing the arc of a young man's journey from innocence, through passion and despair, to the great clarity of spiritual understanding. Arnou-Laujeac's intensely visual account, clothed in lyrical image and visionary flame, in Cardona's transcendent translation, easily carries us along in his brightly burning chariot in quest of the Divine.--Sidney Wade Helene Cardona's new translation confirms again her exquisite powers and imagination in turning Arnou-Laujeac's amazing work into an English classic. She X-rays the original, and comes out with an inner picture faithful to beauty and the author's flowing dexterity.--Willis Barnstone Helene Cardona is an award-winning poet, literary translator and actor.
