

Unpublished Letters of Vidyasagar

Vidyasagar like all other great public figures of his time, had left thousands of letters and important documents to tell the posterity the stories of his life and time. Narayan got that mass of materials, when he took over his fathers house after his death. Soon thereafter he engaged Chandi Charan Bandyopadhyay to write the biography of his late father and placed at his disposal all the personal papers including letters and other documents of Vidyasagar. In 1895 he published a comprehensive biography which was fairly objective, except, however, his narration of Narayans relationship with his father and other members of the family.
